

Worksheet 2: Looking for a research gap in a selected research field

Ask your teacher about a research field that s/he selected for the investigation. Your task is to find a research gap within the specified field by filling out the table below.

Research field:
Subject / course:
Interesting questions to be asked within the research field:
Research gap:

In the last line you have defined your research gap. Now, check if you can perform a study based on your research gap. For that, fill out the table below:

Does the research gap fit the subject / course?
What research methodology will you use?
What data is accessible for your study?
What are the limitations of your research design?
What other topics have been studied given your research question?
How does your proposed study relate to the previous studies? What is new about your research?

Are you happy with your answers?

There is a high chance that you have chosen your research gap well.

Maybe you should look for a different research gap.
